Electric Bus Canadian Standard

THAT Administration work with the Canadian Urban Transit Research and Innovation Consortium (CUTRIC) and any other like organizations, to urge transit manufacturers to create a Canadian standard for electric bus manufacturing, including but not limited to charging infrastructure, that would allow municipalities to have compatible electric transit technology, and promote the development and adoption of such technologies across Canada with the goal of reducing urban greenhouse gas emissions in the transportation sector.

Background

Councillor Brian Botterill served Notice of Motion at the February 21, 2017 Council Meeting, to be presented at the March 28, 2017 Council Meeting.
