

Ed Riedlger's Accomplishments:

Ed Riedlger retired from his role as CEO of the Robin Hood Association in June 2017 after 43 years of service. He spent his working life supporting the non-profits commitment to helping people with disabilities to achieve their personal best and experience a quality lifestyle.

Riedlger and his wife Beverly began their journey with the Robin Hood Association in 1974 when they applied to be house parents for a group home in Sherwood Park. Riedlger's journey continued from there. During his time with the Robin Hood Association, Riedlger saw it grow from a private school with seven staff members to something much more. Today, the organization supports more than 700 children and adults, employs over 500 staff members, and operates close to 60 residential homes and four major facilities, along with a learning centre and six other homes in Fort Saskatchewan.

The growth and development of this charity has been instrumental in creating a support network and opportunities throughout Strathcona County for people with disabilities.
